If you are using a computer, you can use italics instead of underlining or putting the titles in quotations.

Correct the following paragraph. Remember to underline the titles of movies, books, newspapers, magazines, and television shows.

My class read Tuck Everlasting, and most of us loved it! When we looked in the library to find out more about the book, we found a New York Times review about a movie based on the book. My friends and I decided we had to see it. One Friday night, we rented Tuck Everlasting, and we cried our eyes out. Alexis Bleidel, from the television show Gilmore Girls, plays Winnie, who has to make a difficult choice. She’s older than the character in the book, but that seemed right in the movie. Now I really want to read Natalie Babbitt’s other books, such as The Eyes of the Amaryllis and Herbet Rowbarge.
